

5-2015

Faculty Research Directory

Akadimia Filosofia Staff

Fordham University, akademia1@fordham.edu

Follow this and additional works at: <https://fordham.bepress.com/apps>

Part of the Philosophy Commons

Recommended Citation

Staff, Akadimia Filosofia (2015) "Faculty Research Directory," Akadimia Filosofia: Vol. 1 : Iss. 1 , Article 12.

Available at: <https://fordham.bepress.com/apps/vol1/iss1/12>

This Article is brought to you for free and open access by DigitalResearch@Fordham. It has been accepted for inclusion in Akadimia Filosofia by an authorized editor of DigitalResearch@Fordham. For more information, please contact considine@fordham.edu.

Faculty Research Directory

Professor Daryl Tress is an Associate Professor whose concentration is in Ancient Philosophy.
tress@fordham.edu

Professor Giorgio Pini's research interest is in medieval philosophy. Specifically, he has published on medieval metaphysics, theory of cognition, and philosophy of religion. His research focuses on the thought of John Duns Scotus.
pini@fordham.edu

Professor Dominic J. Balestra, Professor of Philosophy, Research Interest: Rationality of and in-between science and religion; Realism and Rationality in 20th & 21st century philosophy of science; and Early modern philosophy especially philosophical issues arising from the modern scientific revolution and religion, Descartes and Spinoza.

Professor Jennifer Gosetti-Ferencei's research interests include Continental philosophy, aesthetics, and the philosophy of literature. Topics of her books include Heidegger and poetic language; phenomenology of modern art and literature; and German modernism. Her current project is a book about the imagination in the history of philosophy and contemporary views of the mind.
Jag126@caa.columbia.edu

Professor John Drummond's main areas of research are phenomenology, value theory, and ethics. In particular, he works on the nature of the intentionality found in cognition, the emotions, evaluation, and volition, and he attempts to draw ethical conclusions from the results.
Drummond@fordham.edu

Professor Christopher Gowans's research focuses on three areas in moral philosophy: issues that arise from moral diversity and conflicts within and across viewpoints; contemporary normative theories and accounts of well-being, especially those rooted in the Aristotelian and Kantian traditions; and ancient philosophical/spiritual traditions that understand and promote the attainment of well-being as a whole comprising wisdom, virtue and tranquility--primarily, the Hellenistic, Buddhist and Daoist perspectives.
gowans@fordham.edu

Professor Judith Jones is interested in process philosophy (especially Whiteheadian approaches to metaphysics in fallibilistic perspective), the status of 'individuals' (human, ontological, or moral), experiential applications of metaphysical theory, philosophical implications of literature, and Harry Potter and Reality.
jujones@fordham.edu

Professor Ballantyne writes mostly on epistemology. He is working on a book manuscript that defends skepticism concerning difficult and disputed questions.
nballantyne@fordham.edu

Father Koterski has research interests in natural law ethics, religion and culture, metaphysics, history of medieval philosophy, contemporary Thomism.
koterski@fordham.edu

Professor Winegar specializes in Kant and German Idealism, and Early Modern Philosophy. He also has interests in Aesthetics, Metaphysics, and Philosophy of Religion.
bwinegar@fordham.edu

Professor Haddad specializes in Twentieth Century French Philosophy and Political Philosophy. His current research also focuses on issues in the Philosophy of Education.
sahaddad@fordham.edu

Professor Christopher Cullen's research interests are in medieval philosophy, especially Augustine, Bonaventure, Aquinas, and their legacies in Scholasticism. His recent issues of interest have been the nature-grace relation, divine exemplarism, and political thought.
ccullen@fordham.edu

Professor Babette Babich works on hermeneutic phenomenological approaches to science, technology, gender studies, politics in philosophy, as well as art and music. She specializes in the work of Nietzsche and Heidegger as well as Adorno and Anders.
babich@fordham.edu

Professor Crina Gschwandtner's research focuses on Continental Philosophy of Religion.
gschwandtner@fordham.edu

Professor Jeff Flynn's research focuses on political philosophy and critical social theory. His current research specifically focuses on global norms, institutions, and modes of activism, particularly those associated with human rights and humanitarianism. He is also interested in methodological debates among Habermasians, Rawlsians, and various other normative, historical, and critical approaches.
jeflynn@fordham.edu

Professor Dana Miller is interested in ancient epistemology, physics, psychology, and rhetoric.

millerquis@fordham.edu

Professor John Davenport focuses on moral psychology, including autonomy and selfhood, existential thought (especially Kierkegaard), ethical theory and political philosophy (human rights, democratic theory, global governance).
davenport@fordham.edu

Professor Michael Baur holds a law degree as well as a Ph.D. in philosophy. His areas of interest include the philosophy of law, nineteenth and twentieth century continental philosophy, metaphysics, pragmatism, and ethics. His published scholarship has focused on the work of thinkers such as Aristotle, Aquinas, Kant, Fichte, Hegel, Heidegger, Gadamer, Lonergan, Peirce, Adorno, and Rawls.
mbaur@fordham.edu