Contents

Introduction: The Problem of Mathematics in Critical Theory 1
1. The Trouble with Logical Positivism: Horkheimer, Adorno, and the Origins of Critical Theory 000
2. The Philosophy of Mathematics: Privation and Representation in Gershom Scholem’s Negative Aesthetics 000
3. Infinitesimal Calculus: Subjectivity, Motion, and Franz Rosenzweig’s Messianism 000
4. Geometry: Projection and Space in Siegfried Kracauer’s Aesthetics of Theory 000
Conclusion: Who’s Afraid of Mathematics? Critical Theory in the Digital Age 000

Acknowledgments 000
Notes 000
Bibliography 000
Index 000